	educators from k-12, community colleges, and 4 year institutions from the regions attended the event and discussed industry trans and preparations of entry level lab technicians for manufacturing jobs. The output from the conference was used to build a survey and While we were not able to predict the COVID-19 pandemic, we were able to pivot quickly to provide a 100% online professional development program starting in mid-March. oProfessional Development worked with workshop presenters to set up their sessions in Zoom.oProfessional Development supported faculty in the move to remote instruction by adding the required trainings into Frontline for registration and tracking all completed hours in both Frontline and the Online Instructor Excel spreadsheet. oIn addition, many classified and administrative staff began taking additional Professional Development trainings to supplement their normal workload when we moved to working remotely. All of these hours are being tracked by Professional Development. There has been an incredible increase in employees taking PD and wanting it registered in Frontline. This has resulted in an increased	l workload for certificates and assistance offered to those who had not used the Vision Resource Center before.oCoordinating all of the training that has taken place since COVID-19 began in March – working with presenters to develop workshops, setting up those workshops in Frontline, advertising them, and tracking attendance – has been a massive undertaking by Sarah and me. There have been SO MANY more employees engaging in professional development, which means they are sending us their Certificates of Completion for online trainings to enter into Frontline. This is a good thing! It's just the sheer volume of this work has greatly increased since March. oThis also includes updating the Online Instructor spreadsheet almost DAILY to track employees who have completed one or more of the components required to become certified to teach online. This spreadsheet is also Staff Development	used to determine seniority for fulltime and adjunct faculty who want to teach online.	ENGAGEMENT	Yes
